

WHO'S THE TERRORIST?

The Criminalization of social movements
and the anti-terrorism crusade

Thursday, November 5th, 6:30
at Pavillon J-A-DeSève (DS), UQAM
Room DS-1580, 320 Sainte-Catherine street East

As state-sponsored crimes are being increasingly normalized on a global scale, and national security is taking precedence over individual and collective rights, the media often plays a critical role in constructing public opinion by not distinguishing between popular resistance and terrorism. Organizing for social, environmental and human rights is portrayed as engaging in criminal acts, and terrorism.

As part of a Canadian tour, a member of the Political Prisoners Solidarity Committee of Colombia, will join Montreal groups - PASC, Tadamon!, Indigenous Solidarity Committee, Certain Days, and the People's Commission Network - in a public discussion about the consequences that the "War on Terror" security policies and practices have on social movements.

We invite you to join the discussion and reflection. We hope to stimulate ideas and strategies in order to reaffirm the legitimacy of our actions and identity when faced with the potential criminalization of our organizations and the struggles we are involved in and support.

WHO'S THE TERRORIST?

The Criminalization of social movements
and the anti-terrorism crusade

Thursday, November 5th, 6:30
at Pavillon J-A-DeSève (DS), UQAM
Room DS-1580, 320 Sainte-Catherine street East

As state-sponsored crimes are being increasingly normalized on a global scale, and national security is taking precedence over individual and collective rights, the media often plays a critical role in constructing public opinion by not distinguishing between popular resistance and terrorism. Organizing for social, environmental and human rights is portrayed as engaging in criminal acts, and terrorism.

As part of a Canadian tour, a member of the Political Prisoners Solidarity Committee of Colombia, will join Montreal groups - PASC, Tadamon!, Indigenous Solidarity Committee, Certain Days, and the People's Commission Network - in a public discussion about the consequences that the "War on Terror" security policies and practices have on social movements.

We invite you to join the discussion and reflection. We hope to stimulate ideas and strategies in order to reaffirm the legitimacy of our actions and identity when faced with the potential criminalization of our organizations and the struggles we are involved in and support.

